Porn on net

The Labor Government plans to filter our internet of refused classification material.

This is a danger to our children because it will give parents a false sense of security.

Children will still be able to stumble across X-rated material and now, thanks to the proposed Government filter, they may be less supervised by their parents.

This may actually increase the amount of pornography children see on the internet.

The Federal Government should bring back the filter the Howard government introduced that was free to all families, instead of dumping it like it did.

It was a much better way of ensuring children were not inadvertently exposed to pornography.
